Choosing us as your default super fund

Every employer needs to choose a super fund for their employees to receive super contributions. And there are reasons why you should choose CareSuper for your employees.

We provide:

- A dedicated team ready to service your needs, including a national contact centre and relationship management team
- Education tools and workplace seminars
- Financial advice services
- Consistently high investment performance over the long term for our MySuper product*, and
- 12 different investment options, plus a Direct Investment option.

Your employees may exercise 'choice of fund' and choose their own provider, or they may already be linked to a 'stapled' super fund.

Others will use your nominated fund (also known as a 'default' fund). They'll rely on your expertise to select a top performing fund for their super savings. There are certain requirements your default super fund must meet. To make sure your fund meets these requirements, check with the fund or the Australian Taxation Office (ATO) at ato.gov.au.

If your business has an enterprise bargaining agreement (EBA), use the EBA as your guide in nominating a default fund.

*SuperRatings SR50 Balanced (60-76 Median) Index, June 2023.

WHEN CHOOSING A DEFAULT SUPERANNUATION PROVIDER...

Carefully compare super funds and choose one that:

- Meets the requirements of a default fund by having a 'MySuper option'
- Has a strong long-term performance record
- Offers competitive, tailored insurance
- Gives members access to quality financial advice*
- Provides ongoing personalised service, education, wellbeing and online tools
- Has simple contribution payment methods.

Choose a super fund that's a good fit for your business and can grow with you over time.

Your employees have the final choice about their super fund. You have 28 days from when they start to provide new employees with a standard choice form (visit ato.gov.au). If they don't choose a fund, you'll need to check with the ATO for a stapled fund. If they don't have a stapled fund, their superannuation guarantee (SG) contributions will go into your nominated default fund.

The Product Disclosure Statement (PDS) for QuickSuper is available on the Westpac website. You should consider the PDS before deciding to accept any offer made by Westpac to issue the product.

Ticking off your employer obligations

Make sure you're doing these things to look after your employees and business.

✔ CHOICE OF FUND

Under legislation, most employees are eligible to choose the fund to which their super goes.

Generally 'Choice of Fund' applies to:

- Employment under Federal awards
- Employment under former state awards (known as 'notional agreement preserving state awards' or 'NAPSA')
- Employment covered by awards or agreements where superannuation support isn't required
- Employment without a state award or industrial agreement in place (this includes contractors paid principally for their labour).
- Employment under an enterprise agreement or workplace determination made on or after 1 January 2021.

Employees on a temporary working visa are not eligible to choose their super fund.

DETERMINING THE CORRECT SUPER FUND FOR NEW EMPLOYEES

If the employee provides you with a completed Choice form, you must pay to their chosen fund. If the employee doesn't provide you with a completed Choice form, you must visit the ATO search tool to find a stapled fund for the employee. If there's no stapled fund for the employee, you must pay to your default fund.

For more information on where to pay super guarantee (SG) contributions or to request an employee's stapled super fund visit ATO Online Services at ato.gov.au.

✔ PROVIDING YOUR EMPLOYEES WITH A CHOICE FORM

Are your employees eligible to choose their own super? Then you're required to provide them with a Choice form within 28 days of any of the following:

- They start working for you
- They request a Choice form from you
- You become aware their chosen fund is no longer eligible to receive contributions (e.g. it's no longer MySuper compliant)
- You changing your employer-nominated fund into which you pay the employee's contributions.

If your employee lets you know they've chosen another super fund or a regulated self-managed fund instead of your provider, you must start paying contributions to that account within 2 months.

Your employees can change their choice of fund as often as they want, but you only have to accept a Choice form once every 12 months.

✔ YOU NEED TO KEEP A RECORD OF YOUR EMPLOYEES' CHOICE

Your records should:

- Be in the English language
- Be kept for 5 years (electronic or written)
- Show all contributions including how much SG you paid for each employee and how it was calculated
- Show that you've offered each eligible employee choice.

For a Choice form, go to caresuper.com.au/employerchoice or ato.gov.au.

✔ PAY THE LEGAL MINIMUM AMOUNT OF SUPER

You're required to pay eligible employees a minimum amount of superannuation. This is called the superannuation guarantee (SG).

The SG amount is a percentage of your employees' ordinary time earnings (OTE). So you'll pay their base salary, plus super and any other benefits.

If you're unsure how to define OTE for super purposes, it's best to check the ATO website at ato.gov.au for the most recent information.

If you have any employees covered by an award or agreement that specifies more SG, then that's what you must pay.

✔ PAY SUPER TO THESE EMPLOYEES

You're generally required to pay super for employees who are:

- Employed on a full-time, part-time or casual basis (even if they're only working in Australia temporarily)
- 18 and over, or
- Under 18 but working more than 30 hours per week.

Depending on their arrangement with you, you may have to pay some contract workers super too, even if they quote an ABN.

You can use the ATO super guarantee eligibility tool at ato.gov.au to work out if your employees are eligible for SG contributions.

✔ MEET THESE CONTRIBUTION DEADLINES

At a minimum, to meet Superannuation Guarantee (SG) requirements, you need to pay super quarterly.

Quarterly Superannuation Guarantee (SG) deadlines

1 July – 30 September	Pay by 28 October
1 October – 31 December	Pay by 28 January
1 January – 31 March	Pay by 28 April
1 April – 30 June	Pay by 28 July

Some awards (if relevant) may require you to pay more frequently. You can also opt to pay more frequently and at CareSuper we recommend contributing monthly. This is good practice as super hits members' accounts sooner and is often in line with the payroll cycle. We note after-tax super contributions deducted from an employee's salary must be contributed monthly by the 28th day of the month following the month the deduction was made. Remember to allow processing time by your bank.

✔ AVOID PENALTIES FOR LATE PAYMENTS

If you miss the quarterly deadlines, you may have to pay additional penalties on top of the ATO's super guarantee charge (SGC). This penalty is made up of the SG shortfall + interest on the shortfall amounts + an administration fee.

The SGC is applied even if you subsequently make the payment, and you must lodge an SGC statement with the ATO. This is due on the 28th of the month following the relevant quarterly deadline. So if you're lodging an SGC statement for the 1 July – 30 September quarter, it's due by 28 November.

If you are penalised, you may be able to do one of two things:

- 1 Use the 'late payment offset' to reduce the amount of SGC you must pay, or
- 2 'Carry forward' your late payment as a pre-payment for a future contribution for the same employee. There are terms, conditions and time limits on both options. You may find the SGC statement and calculator tool useful. You should contact the ATO or your tax adviser to fully explore these possibilities.

✔ WE'LL FOLLOW UP WITH YOU ABOUT MISSED CONTRIBUTIONS

If your employees' super doesn't get paid, we'll get in touch with you to find out why and see if we can help.

There could be a good reason for unpaid super, like an employee having left your organisation, approved leave without pay, or employees receiving worker's compensation or reduced hours. If that's the case, it's important to notify us promptly so we can update the member's account – simply call 1300 360 149.

If you're struggling to make payments or your contributions are in arrears, you should contact the ATO to work out your next steps.

PROVIDING TAX FILE NUMBERS

Why are tax file numbers (TFNs) so important for super?

While members aren't obliged to disclose their TFN, without it we're legally unable to receive certain types of contributions, and higher taxes apply.

It's your job as an employer to pass on any TFNs provided to you for super purposes. (A TFN on an employment declaration form counts as 'for super purposes'). Pass the TFN on within 14 days of receiving it OR when paying your employee's first SG contribution. With CareSuper, the easiest way to provide a TFN is to include it in your contribution file.

There can be serious consequences if you fail to forward an employee's TFN to their super fund and you could be fined by the ATO.

Remember, a TFN is sensitive information. Keep it secure and private. We'll do the same.

KEEP US IN THE LOOP ABOUT YOUR WORKPLACE CHANGES

Let us know about changes at your workplace, including exits and hires, employees on parental or unpaid leave, a change to your trading name or nature of your business, or changes to your contact information.

Keeping your records current helps us help you stay informed.

For example, we can support departing employees with relevant information and documents, even in difficult circumstances such as retrenchments.

To notify us about changes, call 1300 360 149 or contact your Relationship Manager at caresuper.com.au/relationshipmanager.

- Make contributions for all your employees in the one place, regardless of their super fund (includes SMSFs)
- Upload a payroll file or manually enter your employees' contribution details

- Contribute for multiple businesses simultaneously
- Work with your Relationship Manager to tailor and test a solution to suit your business and to make sure your payments run without a hitch.

Understanding your superannuation contributions

The superannuation guarantee (SG) contributions you make on behalf of your employees are only one type of super contribution.

Here are some things to know about contributions.

SALARY SACRIFICE

This is an arrangement between you and your employee, where you agree to pay part of an employee's salary as a before-tax superannuation contribution. This can be tax-effective for employees on high marginal tax rates.

Your employees should be made aware that salary sacrifice, like SG contributions, counts towards their concessional contribution cap.

VOLUNTARY CONTRIBUTIONS

- Payroll deduction (if you offer this)
- BPAY® from employee's bank account
- Direct payment from employee's bank account.

If you offer a payroll deduction facility, make sure you keep all payroll deduction authorities for employees using this option. Deduct the contribution from their after-tax salaries and send them as part of your standard superannuation payment.

There are other voluntary types such as a fixed dollar or percentage amount or a contribution to cover expenses such as insurance premiums or fees.

CONTRIBUTION CAPS

Ensure your employees know there's a limit on how much can be contributed to an individual's super in a financial year, without being taxed at a higher rate. That includes SG, salary sacrifice and any employer additional contributions, as well as any extra employer paid costs you cover for your staff.

To help employees keep under the contributions limit, it's critical you pay on time to ensure contributions are allocated to their correct financial year. If contributions are received late, or outside a financial year, they will be allocated to the period in which the money was received. And if that pushes your employee over a contribution cap for the year, they may have to pay extra tax.

CLAIMING A TAX DEDUCTION FOR EMPLOYER CONTRIBUTIONS

You can claim a tax deduction on the super payments you make for employees (including effective salary sacrifice arrangements), as long as:

- You claim the deduction in the same financial year you make the payments
- You make the payments by the relevant deadlines (at least quarterly for SG contributions and monthly for salary sacrifice)
- The payments are made to a complying super fund
- Voluntary payments for employees who turn 75 are made on or before the 28th day of the month following their birthday.

The ATO records your payment to the employee account on the day it's received by us, not the day you make it.

So, to ensure any payments you want to claim are received prior to the end of the financial year, allow a few weeks for the payment cycle to be completed.

You can claim your deduction when lodging your income tax return.

This information is based on tax law (ato.gov.au) current at April 2021 and may be subject to change.

YOUR REPORTING REQUIREMENTS

You must report the additional super contributions you make for an employee if:

- The contributions exceed the amount you're required to pay by law (i.e. are above the 11.5% SG requirement)
- The employee has the capacity to influence how much extra is contributed.

These contributions aren't included in your employees' assessable incomes, so they don't affect the way you calculate super contributions. You'll need to include this information on your employees' annual payment summary. You only need to report the additional amount, not the SG.
